Introduction

Advances in technology and increased globalization have rendered international travel more common now than in any previous generation. Navigating the myriad of requirements is difficult enough; understanding the unique terms and concepts adds to this difficulty.

International travel can be a wonderful experience for the prepared traveler. A lack of preparation, especially with respect to regulatory, legal, and health considerations, can lead to a frustrating experience at best and a prison sentence or more at worst. This thesaurus provides a foundation for navigating resources that discuss the regulatory, legal, and health considerations of international travel.

Scope

This thesaurus focuses on aspects of international travel related to regulatory, legal, and health matters. It does not cover general travel topics, like transportation, lodging, or dining. It also does not cover the specifics of transportation; however, it is relevant for all common methods of travel transportation. The purpose of the thesaurus is to assist the intended audience in navigating the unique language associated with regulatory, legal, and health-related topics for international travel, enabling them to more easily retrieve relevant information from printed and electronic sources. The intended audience is individuals from the United States interested in traveling internationally. A secondary audience is travel professionals, who can use the thesaurus as a reference. An empirical approach was taken when developing this thesaurus, and literary warrant served as the guiding principle. The deductive method was employed initially and then the inductive method was employed during revisions (NISO, 2003). The resources used to gather the terms in this thesaurus included print and electronic publications in English with a global span and recent publication dates (2010-current). They ranged in type from travel guides and travel weblogs to government tourism office websites and government health and welfare websites. Although the focus of the resources was primarily leisure travel, there was significant overlap with travel for business and other purposes. The initial version of the thesaurus was last updated on September 6, 2012, and has a total of 79 terms (63 descriptors and 16 entry terms).

Legend of Thesaurus Abbreviations & Conventions

The following abbreviations and conventions are based on the National Information Standards Organization (NISO) Standard Z39.19-2003, Guidelines for the Construction, Format, and Management of Monolingual Thesauri (NISO, 2003).

Abbreviations

- BT = Broader Term. A descriptor to which another descriptor or multiple descriptors are subordinate in a hierarchy. The reciprocal of NT.
- NT = Narrower Term. A descriptor that is subordinate to another descriptor or to multiple descriptors in a hierarchy. The reciprocal of BT.
- RT = Related Term. A descriptor that is associatively but not hierarchically linked to another descriptor in a thesaurus.
- SN = Scope Note. A note following a descriptor explaining its coverage, specialized usage, or rules for assigning it.
- U = Use. An indicator that leads from a non-preferred term (entry term) to the preferred term (descriptor). The reciprocal of UF.
- UF = Used For. An indicator that leads from the preferred term (descriptor) to a non-preferred term (entry term). The reciprocal of U.

Conventions

Facets and node labels appear in italics and are enclosed in <angle brackets>.

Descriptors are in bold type.

Entry terms are in regular type.

Examples

dual citizenship

SN Having rights, privileges, and responsibilities of a native or naturalized member of two countries.
UF dual nationality
BT citizenship

Alphabetical display record for the descriptor ‘dual citizenship.’ It contains a scope note (SN), a used for reference (UF), and a broader term (BT). The UF is not bold because it is an entry term. The BT is bold because it is a descriptor.

dual nationality

U dual citizenship

Alphabetical display record for the entry term ‘dual nationality.’ It only contains a use reference (U) because it is an entry term. The entry term is not bold, but the U is bold because it is a descriptor.

immigration

SN The act of settling in a country.
BT <population considerations>
NT immigration status
temporary visitors
RT border controls
immigration authorities

Alphabetical display record for the descriptor ‘immigration.’ It contains a scope note (SN), a broader term (BT), narrower terms (NT), and related terms (RT). The BT is in italics and enclosed in brackets because it is a facet; a facet appears as the BT because the descriptor is at the top of the facet hierarchy. The NT and RT are in bold because they are descriptors.

<regulatory considerations>

border controls

<border controls by documentation>

documentation requirements

entry requirements

Excerpt from the hierarchical display. It includes a facet, ‘regulatory considerations’, and a node label, ‘border controls by documentation;’ both are in italics and enclosed in brackets. The other three terms are descriptors, so they appear in bold. Entry terms are not displayed in the hierarchical structure.

Using the Thesaurus

The construction of the thesaurus is based on the NISO Standard Z39.19-2003, particularly the print display principles (NISO, 2003). The thesaurus is divided into two sections: a hierarchical display and an alphabetical display. The hierarchical display allows quick browsing of terms, especially facets, node labels, broader terms, and narrower terms. The alphabetical display allows a more thorough review of the full term record, which also includes scope notes, non-preferred terms, and related terms. Both of the sections are filed letter-by-letter because that is the software’s (Microsoft Excel) default.

Since the audience of this thesaurus includes people that may not be familiar with the nuances of all of the term relationships, related terms within the same facet are common to provide context. The choice of preferred forms was based on what was most commonly found in the literature. For example, “Yellow Book” is the more common term (and therefore preferred) when referring to the authoritative source of United States Government recommendations for vaccinations and prophylaxis for foreign travel, even though the publication's official title is "CDC Health Information for International Travel."

Multiword descriptors are common in this domain, but each descriptor represents a single concept. Homographs are uncommon in this domain, and any appearing would be qualified by including a clarifying term in parentheses after the descriptor.

ABSTRACT: International travel is undertaken by large, and ever increasing, numbers of people for professional, social, recreational and humanitarian purposes. More people travel greater distances and at greater speed than ever before, and this upward trend looks set to continue. Travelers are thus exposed to a variety of health risks in unfamiliar environments. Most such risks, however, can be minimized by suitable precautions taken before, during and after travel, and it is the purpose of these pages to provide guidance on measures to prevent or reduce any adverse consequences for travelers' health. The book is addressed primarily to medical and public health professionals who provide health advice to travelers, but it is also intended to provide guidance to travel agents and organizers, airlines and shipping companies. The recommendations address the health risks associated with different types of travel and travelers.

ABSTRACT: ISA's mission is to provide high quality education abroad opportunities to American and Canadian college students at an affordable price. The programs are designed to maximize participants' learning abroad, and ISA understands that most college students need support and expert guidance before, during and after their time abroad. The resources listed on this page will be very helpful in preparing for a study abroad experience. The websites found under each subject heading are not directly affiliated with ISA, but offer great information that ISA students have found useful in the past. Although there are many other sources of information that may aid in preparing for a study abroad experience, this list will give a point in the right direction.

DESCRIPTORS: consular offices, currency exchanges, embassies, passports, travel medicine, vaccinations, visas
